Pope Francis wishes to address every person living on this planet. The urgent challenge to protect our common home concerns the whole human family together. He is appealing for a new dialogue about how we are shaping the future of our planet. The environmental degradation we are undergoing, affects us all, but is most detrimental to those who are the most in need around the world.

This event will offer the community of the faithful an opportunity to learn more and to take action to address these ecological concerns from a faith perspective.
